

Get Intercepts via e-mail.

Enter your email address:

Delivered by FeedBurner

BLOGROLL

- *EIA homepage
- *Intercepts RSS Feed
- Edspresso
- Education News
- Eduwonk
- Flypaper
- Gotham Schools
- Jay P. Greene's Blog
- Joanne Jacobs
- Joe Williams
- Mr. Moleman & Friends
- National Journal
- Politics K-12
- Right on the Left Coast
- Teacher Beat
- The Quick and the Ed
- This Week in Education

POPULAR POSTS

- Stay Tuned
0 comment(s) | 39 view(s) per day
- Dogs and Cats Living Together
2 comment(s) | 36 view(s) per day
- Data Link Stink Mounting in California
3 comment(s) | 33 view(s) per day
- Equal Opportunity
0 comment(s) | 28 view(s) per day

The Cheese Is Not the Only Difference

Dogs and Cats Living Together

I'm not completely sure what to make of this, so I'll just present it to you and await further developments:

Hillsborough schools and teachers' union join hands with Florida voucher advocates to train private school teachers

TAMPA — On a normal day, oil and water just don't mix.

Public schools and teachers' unions don't say nice things about those who support school vouchers, sending kids to private schools with public money. Most of the time, such folks just don't get along.

But Wednesday wasn't a normal day.

In a move that experts are calling nearly unprecedented, the Hillsborough County schools and teachers' union have joined forces with a nonprofit Florida voucher group to help train private school teachers.

The full story is in the St. Petersburg Times.

Share / Save

This entry was posted on Thursday, August 13th, 2009 at 07:59 and is filed under Uncategorized. You can follow any responses to this entry through the RSS 2.0 feed. You can leave a response, or trackback from your own site.

Darren Says:
August 13th, 2009 at 10:43

If the union is involved, it's because they think they'll get more members.